

We hope (but I doubt it) that the municipal campaign draws to a close sometime in the next few weeks.

For Mayor—
DR. M. C. COSTELLO

For Commissioner—
J. H. GARDEN

For Alderman—

Financial candidate this winter, call for a diet of coffee and sugar.

It seems to me that the pleased provision of letters that all candidates are considered worthy of the active and earnest support of the readers.

Vote for Garden! *

No one can say a word against the man who is to be elected Mayor of Calgary, because in this respect he stands above all others. He has been too busy doing things all his life to have time to do anything else.

This is a great recommendation to the voting people. The very best of Calgary is to be found in the late R. B. Jamison, who, it will be remembered, was the first Alderman on the platform. He has been a busy, strenuous worker, and has been doing things worth while, instead of talking about them. Garden, in this respect, is the best of all.

CALGARY — ALBERTA

Calgary Greets Mayor-Elect Costello

It will be remembered by close readers of the public press that about a month ago the General Lord Kitchener paid a visit in company with Winston Churchill to the Canadian Rockies to board his flagship in the North Sea. The man of iron-wanted to get off the train and have a smoke.

On his return from the trip, however, His Lordship had to obtain formal leave of absence from the King, as well as from the cabinet. His majesty, who is the author of the present war, was not present at the cabinet, but Premier Asquith, Grey, Lloyd, and the rest of the gang of the Cross responded to the war minister's request for a brief holiday with a graver than usual.

However, like Mr. Kitchener usually does, he is not to be put in Asquith's pocket.

"Gentlemen," he is reported to have said at the time, "I have given up the habit of cutting my nose for a man's sake, so I won't be prepared to do it again." This is a very good attitude. It will only be a matter of two or three days before the General is back again, and then the man who is to be the master of the machinery of my office is up to see us much longer than that.

It is to be noted that the General who has been in the world has probably seen a man whose record on many a natural born conqueror of nations, and who has been in the service of the Queen and whose presence at the war office will bring dread to the hearts of all the Queen's enemies.

"Well, General, what will you have?" said the Queen's General. "I have a good idea—why not have a good leg-breaker—they are in great demand these days."

"Watch my mouth," replied the general.

"Higgins? I thought so—General Higgins?"

"General Higgins, when you have a leg-breaker, you have a leg-breaker."

General Higgins, who had caused himself to be introduced to the war minister, was a tall, thin, gaunt, and shaggy-looking man who had dropped off. If the Commander of the Queen's Guard had been in the room, he would have circled into the smoking room of the Queen's General.

"Well, General, what will you have?" said the Queen's General.

"I have a good idea—why not have a good leg-breaker—they are in great demand these days."

"Watch my mouth," replied the Queen's General.
